

LOCATION, LOCATION, LOCATION!

The setting is the time and place of a story. Folk tales rely on their location to add lots of uniqueness to a story. The story of Old Dry Frye is set in the Appalachian Mountains. This impacts the story in a lot of ways from the types of characters we see to the locations the characters go. But how would it be different if it were set somewhere else? How would things be different if Old Dry Frye were set in New York City? Perhaps he's not a preacher who loves fried chicken, but a businessman who loves to buy things on sale. Instead of going to people's houses for dinner, maybe he goes to stores that are having big sales.

Think of your own unique version of Old Dry Frye and, on the worksheet below, change the facts. Then draw your own Old Dry Frye cartoon on the comic strip to show your story!

“Old Dry Frye is a _____ (JOB) who loves _____

(FOOD OR ITEM). One day when visiting _____ (PERSON OR PLACE), he....”

Show us what happens in the cartoon strip below!

